I am experimenting with using the most popular video/audio conversion software today, as a way to connect.Q: Can not link vtable to abstract class I have a basic abstract class and it has a vtable. I also have a sample class that is derived from the abstract class. I am trying to set the vtable pointer on the derived class to point to the base class. The problem I am having is when I try to link the vtable I get an error from the linker that says: undefined reference to `MyClass::~MyClass()' Here is the code for the abstract base class. class Singleton { public: Singleton(); virtual ~Singleton(); private: static Singleton *mInstance; Singleton(); Singleton(const Singleton&); }; Singleton *Singleton::mInstance = NULL; And here is the code for the derived class #include "base.h" class MyClass : public Singleton { public: void myMethod(); }; void MyClass::myMethod() { std::cout myMethod(); } I thought that perhaps I should be creating a static variable with the name of the class so I tried this: class MyClass : public Singleton { public: void myMethod(); }; Singleton MyClass::Singleton::mInstance; MyClass:: f678ea9f9e
